Symposium No. 1

Phonetic Universals in Phonological Systems and their Explanation

JOHN J. OHALA: Moderator's introduction (Summary)	5
THOMAS V. GAMKRELIDZE: Hierarchical relations among units as phonological universals.	9
ANDRÉ-GEORGES HAUDRICOURT: Apparition et disparition des occlusives sonores préglottalisées	16
ROBERT K. HERBERT: Typological universals, aspiration and post-nasal stops	19
JEAN-MARIE HOMBERT: Universals of vowel systems: the case of centralized vowels	27
BJÖRN LINDBLOM: Some phonetic null hypotheses for a biological theory of language	33
JOHN J. OHALA: Universals of labial velars and de Saussure's chess analogy	41
KENNETH L. PIKE: Universals and phonetic hierarchy	48

Symposium No. 2

The Psychological Reality of Phonological Descriptions

VICTORIA A. FROMKIN: Moderator's introduction (Summary)	63
L.V. BONDARKO: On the phonological operations ensuring speech communication	67
LYLE CAMPBELL: The quest for psychological reality: external evidence in phonology	74

ANNE CUTLER: The psychological reality of word formation and lexical stress rules	79
BRUCE L. DERWING: Problems in establishing the psychological reality of linguistic constructs	86
WOLFGANG U. DRESSLER: Arguments and non-arguments for naturalness in phonology: on the use of external evidence	93
EDMUND GUSSMANN: Abstract phonology and psychological reality	101
KENNETH HALE: The problem of psychological reality in the phonology of Papago	108
PER LINELL: Psychological reality and the concept of phonological rule	114
ROYAL SKOUSEN: Empirical interpretations of psychological reality	121

Symposium No. 3

Acquisition of the Phonological System of the Mother Tongue

CHARLES A. FERGUSON: Moderator's introduction (Summary)	131
JOHN H.V. GILBERT: On the vowel and its nature, between eighteen months and five years	134
SARAH HAWKINS: The control of timing in children's speech	142
DAVID INGRAM: Cross-linguistic evidence on the extent and limit of individual variation in phonological development	150
HENG-HSIUNG JENG: The acquisition of Chinese phonology in relation to Jakobson's laws of irreversible solidarity	155
PATRICIA K. KUHL: Predispositions for the perception of speech by human infants	162
LISE MENN: Transition and variation in child phonology: modeling a developing system	169
PAULA MENYUK: Speech sound categorization by children	176

Symposium No. 4

Social Factors in Sound Change

EINAR HAUGEN: Moderator's introduction (Summary)	185
HENRIK BIRNBAUM: Ongoing sound change and the abductive model: some social constraints and implications	189
LARS BRINK and JØRN LUND: Social factors in the sound changes of modern Danish	196
IVAN FÓNAGY: Structure et aspects sociaux des changements prosodiques	204
WILLIAM LABOV: The social origins of sound change	212
BERTIL MALMBERG: Social structure and phonemic modification	222
FRED C.C. PENG: The reality of sound change: a socio-linguistic interpretation.	229

Symposium No. 5

Temporal Relations within Speech Units

ILSE LEHISTE: Moderator's introduction (Summary)	241
GEORGE D. ALLEN: Formal and statistical models of timing: past, present, and future	245
ROBERT BANNERT: The effect of sentence accent on quantity	253
ROLF CARLSON, BJÖRN GRANSTRÖM, and DENNIS H. KLATT: Some notes on the perception of temporal patterns in speech	260
ANDREW DONOVAN and C.J. DARWIN: The perceived rhythm of speech	268
HIROYA FUJISAKI and NORIO HIGUCHI: Temporal organization of segmental features in Japanese disyllables	275
A.W.F. HUGGINS: Some effects on intelligibility of inappropriate temporal relations within speech units	283
DENNIS H. KLATT: Synthesis by rule of segmental durations in English sentences	290
SIEB G. NOOTEBOOM: Complex control of simple decisions in the perception of vowel length	298

S.E.G. ÖHMAN, S. ZETTERLUND, L. NORDSTRAND, and O. ENG-STRAND: Predicting segment durations in terms of a gesture theory of speech production 305

Symposium No. 6

Motor Control of Speech Gestures,

JAMES LUBKER: Moderator's introduction (Summary) 315

JAMES H. ABBS: Speech motor equivalence: the need for a multi-level control model 318

R.A.W. BLADON: Motor control of coarticulation: linguistic considerations 325

R.G. DANILOFF and M.A.A. TATHAM: Segmental invariance reconsidered 332

JOHN W. FOLKINS: Masseter, temporalis, and medial ptery-goid activity with the mandible free and fixed 337

THOMAS GAY and MICHAEL TURVEY: Effects of efferent and afferent interference on speech production: implications for a generative theory of speech motor control 344

HAJIME HIROSE: A correlation analysis of EMG activity and the movement of selected speech organs 351

JOSEPH S. PERKELL: On the use of orosensory feedback: an interpretation of compensatory articulation experiments 358

HARVEY M. SUSSMAN: Motor unit discharge patterns during speech: temporal reorganization due to coarticulatory
and prosodic events 365

Symposium No. 7

The Relation between Sentence
Prosody and Word Prosody

EVA GÅRDING: Moderator's introduction (Summary) 375

ARTHUR S. ABRAMSON: Lexical tone and sentence prosody in Thai 380

GÖSTA BRUCE: Word prosody and sentence prosody in Swedish 388

J. 't HART and R. COLLIER: On the interaction of accentuation and intonation in Dutch 395

PŘEMYSL JANOTA: Some observations on the perception of stress in Czech 403

EUNICE V. PIKE: Word stress and sentence stress in various tone languages 410

NINA THORSEN: Lexical stress, emphasis for contrast, and sentence intonation in Advanced Standard Copenhagen
Danish 417

KAY WILLIAMSON: Sentence tone in some southern Nigerian languages 424

Symposium No. 8

Perception of Speech versus
Non-Speech

DAVID B. PISONI: Moderator's introduction (Summary) 433

ANTHONY E. ADES: Speech & non-speech: what have we learned? 438

PIERRE L. DIVENYI: Some psychoacoustic factors in phonetic analysis 445

MICHAEL F. DORMAN: On the identification of sine-wave analogues of CV syllables 453

M.E. GRUNKE and D.B. PISONI: Perceptual learning of mirror-image acoustic patterns 461

ALVIN M. LIBERMAN: Duplex perception and integration of cues: evidence that speech is different from non-speech and similar to language 468

DOMINIC W. MASSARO: Issues in speech perception 474

QUENTIN SUMMERFIELD and PETER J. BAILEY: What tells us that speech is speech? 482
